

freedom — transformation

continuity change

state of process of being → becoming

task of
self-overcoming / Selbstaufhebung:

(selbst-Aufhebung)
self-“sublation” (literally: “to take oneself up”) what “is” → what “ought” to be what could be

potential

what should be

possibility

the extant → actuality

Nature → Spirit (Geist — Mind, consciousness)

given new

→

same different

self-overcoming:

self-fulfillment

self-negation

self-completion

self-transcendence

self-realization

self-abolition

immanent dialectical critique of phenomena immanent dialectical critique of phenomena — symptomatic, diagnostic, prognostic: pointing beyond themselves

from

according to

conditions

of

necessary

expressions of pathology — the logic of suffering from unfreedom within

(self-)

of

forms of

Erscheinung (phenomenon, appearance, semblance)

contradiction

possibility

appearance

Hegel: “the essence/substance (of freedom) must appear”

for

of the

phases of the appearance of freedom:

transformation

necessity

religion — art — philosophy

(of the tasks) for freedom

Marx: “all critique begins with the critique of religion”